BATTLE HYMN OF THE STEWARTS

TUNE: "Battle Hymn of the Republic"

Walter Fitz Al-an was sire of Stewarts, we are told;
At Hastings with the Conqueror he was a warrior bold.
They "flourish by ancestral honors;" Stewarts are pure gold.
The Clan goes marching on!

CHORUS: Glory to the name of Stewart!
Glory to the House of Stewart!
A-vi-te Vi-ret Ho-no-re!
The Clan goes marching on!

Robert, Duncan, John and James were fathers of our clan;
James and Charles were Kings of England. James a handsome man,
Was "the Bonny Earl". The British loved their good Queen Anne.
The Clan goes marching on!

Another James was hero of Scott's "Legend of Montrose."
Charles Stewart served with Washington and shared his joys and woes.
William, with brave Daniel Boone, defeated Indian foes.
The Clan goes marching on!

The Stewarts fought at Dunbar, Hastings, Boyne and Waterloo.
When worthy causes need defenders they are brave and true.
They died in seventeen seventy-six and nineteen eighteen, too.
The Clan goes marching on!

The Stewart Clan is mighty, nearly half a million strong.
"Noble is the wrath of lion" turned against the wrong.
Twenty towns bear Stewart names. Sure, let us sing that song—
The Clan goes marching on!

The Stewarts dwelt in England, Scotland, Ireland and in Wales;
Where English tongue is spoken now the Stewart tribe prevails.
How could the nations but advance when Stewart never fails!
The Clan goes marching on!

The Stewart sons have courage any task or foe to face;
The Stewart girls are lovely, with their beauty, charm and grace.
The Stewart leaven is a blessing to the human race.
The Clan goes marching on!

The name of Stewart shineth high upon the scroll of fame.
They have blue blood, but it is red and royal, just the same.
And nearly every Stewart has pursued a lofty aim.
The Clan goes marching on!

(A) INTRODUCTION

THE Stewart Family is among the forty-nine "best families" selected by the American Historical-Genealogical Society for whom the Society has published family histories during the past few years. The Stewart family has been prominent in the British Empire and in the United States, its members having played important rôles in war and in peace. Family pride is a commendable trait and should be cultivated. All Stewarts have just cause to be proud of their family history and traditions.

In references No. 7 and No. 14 we find the following regarding the origin and meaning of the name Stewart.

Alan, the son of Flaald (who died very early in the 12th century), was the parent of William Fitz-Alan, ancestor of the Earls of Arundel, and of Walter Fitz-Alan, "Steward" of Scotland, whose great grandson, Alexander, assumed "Stuart" as his surname and was the ancestor of the royal family of that name.

Flaald descended, on his mother's side, from the old Princes of Wales, and from the ancient Saxon Earls of Mercia.

"Stewart" is one of the various spellings of the name. Besides "Stuart" it is also found as "Steward" and "Stuard".

The data in this volume is gathered from reliable sources. We have selected what we consider the most important material. Many of the daughters, and sons for whom no issue was shown, have been omitted from the pedigrees. A missing symbol indicates that a name has been omitted. Those desiring further information are advised to consult the volumes mentioned in the list of References.

The compiler hopes that, in producing this volume he is bringing to the Stewart Family information which will be of interest and value to them, and that he is rendering an important service to the public. He and his associates will be glad to give their cooperation to members of the family who are interested in having a complete genealogy of the family published.

Unless otherwise plainly shown, the persons in this volume whose names are accompanied by three figures are children of the immediately preceding persons bearing immediately preceding numbers. All persons in each group bearing the same letter as a part of their numbers, are directly related. The generations of the descendants of those bearing numbers of three figures are represented as follows. However, some of our material is published as copied from various records without rearrangement according to this system.

(B) THE STEWART COAT OF ARMS

A COAT of Arms is an emblem or a device which is displayed by titled persons, persons of royal blood, and their descendants. Coats of Arms were originally used for purposes of identification and recognition on the field of battle as well as in civil life.

It is claimed by some writers that Coats of Arms, in a crude form, were used by Noah's sons after the flood. There are records of other Coats of Arms, in one crude form or another, at different periods of ancient history. Heraldry, however, as we know it today, did not become of much importance until soon after the invasion of England by William the Conqueror, A. D. 1066. Heraldry became of general interest at about the time of the Crusades.

The Stewart Coat of Arms shown in the front of this volume is the Arms of the Stewarts of Bute, who now represent the Royal Stewarts of Scotland. The orle of the Stewarts (see Heraldic Description below) was the orle of the arms of Scotland. The arms—or a fess chequy argent and azure—was first adopted by the High Stewards of Scotland in the 12th century, allusively to the chequers of the Steward's board.

The Scottish Stewart families of Appin and Ardsheal, Renfrew, Ardvorlich, Achnacone, Balnakeilly, Athenry, Chesfield, Garlies, Blackhouse and Clachglass, Co. Inverness; the Irish Stewarts of Dublin and Physgill, and many other branches of the Stewart family incorporate in their Coats of Arms this ancient insignia of the High Stewards.

This is undoubtedly the most widely used of all Stewart Coats of Arms and has been in existence for many centuries. It is described in BURKE'S GENERAL ARMORY, BURKE'S LANDED GENTRY, BURKE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE and other reliable works on heraldry, in many cases accompanied by illustrations and pedigrees. It has been used for generations by many American branches of the Stewart family.

	HERALDIC LANGUAGE	ENGLISH DESCRIPTION
Arms.....	Or, a fesse chequy argent and azure within an orle flory-counter-flory gules.	On a golden shield a blue and silver chequered bar within an orle (combination of lines and fleurs de lis) of red.
Crest.....	A demi-lion rampant gules.	A red half-lion rampant.
Motto.....	Nobilis est ira leonis. (Latin—above crest). Avite viret honore. (Latin—below arms).	Noble is the wrath of the lion. He flourishes by ancestral honors.

Sir Bernard Burke, of Heralds College, London, said "Heraldry is prized by all who can show honorable ancestry or wish to found honorable families."

Besides its family significance this Coat of Arms makes an excellent mural decoration and inspires the admiration and comment of all who see it.

It is quite appropriate that members of the Stewart family who have a pride in their ancestry should display the family Coat of Arms, in proper colors.

(D) PROMINENT BRITISH STEWARTS, PAST GENERATIONS

Alexander Stewart: (1343?–1405?); Earl of Buchan, and Lord of Badenoch; called the "Wolf of Badenoch"; fourth s. of King Robert II of Scotland; received from his father the famous castle of Lochindorb; in 1372, he was king's lieutenant and justiciary north of the Forth; the earl's tomb is still to be seen in the church of Dunkeld, though much defaced, having been destroyed by the Cameronian regiment stationed there in 1689.

ALEXANDER: (1454?–1485); Duke of Albany; second s. of James II of Scotland and Mary of Gueldres; was the possessor of many titles, and when only 13 years of age is mentioned as holding a court at Dunbar for his vassals in the earldom; took active part in the defence and government of the kingdom; was created high admiral; while still under age he sat in Parliament; the last seven years of the life of Albany were crowded with romance and tragedy; his offices and lands brought him into conflict with two of the most powerful barons of the day; Stewart was imprisoned by king's order; he escaped by a rope from the castle wall; his chamber child had made the descent first and broken his thigh, so Albany carried the child to safety on his back and himself escaped to France; he was received by Louis XI and lodged at his expense; was killed by misadventure by a splinter from a lance when a spectator at a tournament between the Duke of Orleans and a knight; he was buried in the choir of the church of the Celestines in Paris.

ALEXANDER PATRICK: M.D.; (1813–1883); physician; studied at the University of Glasgow, in Paris and Berlin; settled in London where he practiced till his death; was physician of the Middlesex Hospital, and a fellow of the Coll. of Physicians; was also a lecturer on medicine, and an active member of the British Medical Assoc. Stewart's character and attainments were much esteemed by the physicians of the time.

ANDREW: (d. 1488); first Lord Avondale, Chancellor of Scotland, eldest s. of second Duke of Albany; Sir Andrew rose in favor with the young king, James II, and held office in the royal household.

ANDREW: (d. 1671); Irish divine; in 1646 settled as a minister, but in 1650 fled to Scotland, owing to the troubles which arose in Ireland in consequence of the execution of Charles I; on return to Ireland, he took part in drawing up "The Act of Bangor", intended to prevent the troubles between the resolutions and protestors in Scotland from spreading to Ireland; Stewart was buried in Donaghadee churchyard.

ANTHONY: (1773–1846); miniature-painter; while a youth he was introduced to General Campbell of Monzie, whose daughters he assisted in painting medallions for the decoration of a summer house; they were so pleased at his ability, that they articled him at their own expense to Alex. Nasmyth, Edinburgh, the landscape painter; Stewart moved to London, met the royal family, and painted the Princess Charlotte; executed the earliest miniature of Queen Victoria who sat for him when a year old, and for several successive years after that; he excelled in painting children; for the last fifteen years of his life, devoted himself exclusively to them.

BALFOUR: (1828–1887); physicist and meteorologist; b. in Edinburgh; educated at the university; sent to Australia on business; there his taste for physical science developed; he wrote several articles, 1855, and contributed them to the Philosophical Society of Victoria; on his return gave up business, joined the staff of Kew Observatory as assistant observer, at the time working on pure mathematics for which he showed a distinct aptitude; undertook the researches on radiant heat which were his most important contributions to physical science and for which he was awarded the Rumford medal by the Royal Society; in 1859 was director at Kew Observatory and so devoted himself to the phenomena of terrestrial magnetism; published, in conjunction with two others, a long series of investigations on sun spots; in 1867 he was secretary to the government meteorological committee; supervised the installation of meteorological stations all over the kingdom; became professor of natural philosophy in the Owens Coll.; in 1875, was published anonymously a book called "The Unseen Universe", by Stewart and his friend Professor Tait; it excited much comment, running through 14 editions in 13 years; he published about 67 papers himself and many more in conjunction with others; he was president of many scientific societies and one of the founders of the Physical Society which he also lead; editor of a number of successful text books.

CHARLES WILLIAM: (1778–1854); third marquis of Londonderry; served as major in the Netherlands and with the Austrian army in campaign on the Rhine and Upper Danube; in 1807, became under-secretary of war; in 1810, received the rank of major-general and the thanks of the house of Commons in his place in Parliament; was made a K. B., received the Portugal order of the Tower and Sword, the gold medal for his services in the Peninsula; he was British minister to the court of Berlin, "specially charged with the military superintendence, so far as Great Britain is concerned, of the Prussian and Swedish armies"; Stewart won Swedish, Prussian and Russian decorations, the letter being accompanied by a letter from the Emperor Alexander bearing witness to his indefatigable zeal, coolness and valour on the battlefield; in 1814 he became ambassador at Vienna; represented Great Britain at the congresses of Troppau Layback; he was lord of the bedchamber to George IV.

DUGALD: (1753–1828); philosopher; b. at Edinburgh; during his preliminary education Stewart acquired a taste for the classics, and especially for Latin poetry, which he always retained; became a student of humanity at the university; was much impressed by Reid's works; went to Glasgow and attended the lectures of the latter; finally becoming his personal friend; in 1772 was recalled to Edinburgh to take charge of the mathematical classes; he gave a course upon morality; lectured 3 hours daily upon mathematics, besides giving for the first time a course upon astronomy; in 1785 he was transferred to the chair of moral philosophy, and speedily obtained an influence such as has been enjoyed by few English philosophers; after Reid's death he was the only writer of recognized authority on the Island; Stewart's lectures produced an extraordinary effect and there are many mentions made of their excellence —the clarity and delicacy of his presentation, and the paramount place he held among philosophers.

SIR HERBERT: (1843–1885); major-general; during an outbreak of cholera, the measures taken were due to his promptness and judgment, and he was put in the quartermaster-general's department; in 1879 was appointed brigade-major of cavalry in Natal, and served in the later part of the Zulu war; Colonel Russell said of him "the energy and power of hard work displayed by him were marvelous, and the skill, tact and temper he showed in dealing with the very various and conflicting elements were beyond praise"; aidé-de-camp to Lord Spencer, 1882; he died in service in India, and Lord Wolseley, in the telegram reporting his death, said: "No braver soldier or more brilliant leader of men ever wore the Queen's uniform". There is a mural monument to Stewart by Boehm in St. Paul's Cathedral.

JAMES: (1476?–1504); Duke of Ross; archbishop of St. Andrews and lord high chancellor of Scotland; s. of James III by Margaret, dau. of Christian III of Denmark; in 1498 was appointed to the see of St. Andrews and went to Rome to be confirmed by the pope; there his appearance attracted the attention of Ariosto who in "Orlando Furioso" describes him as peerless in personal beauty and grace, and possessor of a dauntless mind; in 1502 he became lord high chancellor of Scotland.

JAMES: (1499?–1544); Earl of Moray; natural s. of James IV of Scotland; by Janet, dau. of John, Lord Kennedy; in 1501 Stewart was created Earl of Moray, Lord Abernethy and Strathearn by his father; in 1523 he was one of the guardians of the young King James, and a little later lieutenant-general of the French forces in the kingdom; in 1532 he was warden of the east and middle march, 3,000 men under his command; was one of the commissioners to conclude a treaty of marriage between James V and Marie de Bourbon; he was all his life exceedingly hostile to England and resented any influence in Scotland.

JAMES: (d. 1592); Earl of Moray of a new line; elder s. of James Stewart, abbot of St. Colme; from James VI he received in 1580 a gift of the ward and marriage of the two dau. of the regent Moray, and soon m. Elizabeth the elder one and assumed the title of the Earl of Moray; his personal beauty and accomplishment gained him the name of "the bonny earl"; he served on the commission for executing the act against the Spanish Armada, and act against the Jesuits; Huntly and his followers, enemies of Moray, set fire to his house, and when he dashed out, followed and slayed him; the murder of the earl is the theme of a short traditional ballad, the simple pathos of which is evidence that the tragedy powerfully effected public feeling.

JAMES: (1791–1863); engraver; b. at Edinburgh; studied drawing in the Trustees' Academy; became a very able line engraver; engraved many plates after Allan and Wilkie, the latter a friend whom he much admired; an original member of the Royal Scottish Academy; exhibited at the British Institute; emigrated to Cape Colony, moved to the town of Somerset and died in the Colony.

JOHN: (1381?–1424); Earl of Buchan; eldest s. of the second marriage of the Duke of Albany; gained by his valour the popular epithet of "brave John O'Coul"; when, in 1418, an embassy arrived from France, earnestly pleading for Scottish aid to assist the dauphin (later Charles VII) against the English, the earl led 6,000 Scots by sea to Rochelle; in 1421 they completely defeated the English at Beaug[illegible]; this success won him the office of constable of France; the force was increased but the French and Scots were defeated with great slaughter near Verneuil; the earl commanded the center; they fought so bravely and so stubbornly that nearly 9,000 were left dead on the field; among those was Buchan who fled covered with wounds, and was buried at Tours in the same tomb with the Earl of Douglas.

JOHN: (1481–1536); Duke of Albany; regent of Scotland; raised in France by his mother and continued through life to consider it his native country, its king his master and to sign his name Jehan; the Scots, however, treated him as a Scot, described him as John, duke of Albany, and their parliament not only elected him regent, but declared him next heir to the crown; in 1515 went to Glasgow when Parliament met; he was declared tutor and governor of the kingdom; his first period of regency was singularly successful and he returned to France for six months; during his absence, however, Scotland became distracted and made the Scots more anxious than ever to have him back; on his return to Scotland it was said that Albany was aiding Margaret Tudor at the court of Rome to secure a divorce, which was true, with the object of marrying her himself, which was certainly false, and that in so doing was endangering the life of the young king; Albany whose heart was always in France, desired to return there, and was granted permission with the provision that if he did not return in four months he should forfeit the regency; he sailed and never saw Scotland again; James V, twelve years old, was made king; Albany still continued to take part in politics, but never attained the same position as when governor of Scotland.

JOHN: (1749–1822); "Walking John"; b. in London of Scottish parents and often wandered away from them in his childhood; through the interest of Lord Bute he obtained in 1763, the post of writer under the East India Co. at Madras; he discovered there that enormous abuses flourished in administrative life; pointed them out and was considered, because of his youth, insolent and audacious; he resigned and became a general in Hyder's army; he entered the service of the nabob of Arcot; became prime minister, in which position he expended large sums of money, not repaid for many years; travelled into the interior parts of India; visited Persia, completely mastering the language; walked through France and Spain; he wandered through Vienna, Constantinople, part of United States, Canada, Scotland, Ireland, etc.; in 1792 Wordsworth met him at Paris and was captivated by his eloquency; Stewart knew eight languages; was a man of great genius, and great eloquence. His language was remarkable for the aptness and variety of his illustrations; he possessed much humor and great skill in imitating the tone and manner of foreigners.

MATTHEW: (1717–1785); mathematician; educated at Glasgow University; had marked predilection for the Greek geometricians; published a work which placed him at once among the geometers of the first rank; was professor of mathematics at Edinburgh; in 1756, he published "Essays", a solution of the problem involved in Kepler's second law of planetary motion; in 1764 became a fellow of the Royal Society.

ROBERT: (1340?–1420); First Duke of Albany; regent of Scotland; in 1360 was sent to England as hostage for David II; in 1373 he had a charter from the king making him and his heirs male governors of the castle of Stirling; during his term of office did much to improve and strengthen its defences. At a meeting of parliament, it was declared that failing the king's eldest son and his heirs, the succession should devolve on Stewart; held the office of high chamberlain of Scotland; attained a position of commanding importance and his father and eldest brother being physically unfit, it was agreed that he should be elected guardian of the kingdom; the regency of Albany, possibly on the ground that the king was in the hands of Henry, a hostile monarch, assumed an entirely independent character.

Sir Robert: (d. 1670?); governor of Londonderry; in 1609, conducted 800 swordsmen, followers of Hugh O'Neill, out of Ireland into Sweden; King James allowed him to enter the service of Gustavus Adolphus; he remained abroad for six years when he received lands for her faithful services; also served under Sigismund III, king of Poland; in 1643, Stewart was Governor of Londonderry; after the collapse of the royalist cause in Ireland, he was given the office of governor, "in consideration of his many services performed to King Charles I, and the good affection expressed by him in the late troubles in England, in his arming and maintaining a regiment of foot and a troop of horse at his own charge in the service of the said king."

Robert: (1769–1822); second Marquis of Londonderry; better known as Viscount Castlereagh; displayed from childhood great talent, industry and resolution of character; in 1793 he became lieutenant-colonel of the Londonderry militia; was a member of parliament; in 1798 he was given the office of chief secretary in Ireland; became chiefly engrossed in foreign concerns; he was secretary of state for the war and colonial department; during this time, in spite of checks and disasters, by his own exertions and policies, he had begun that combination of forces by sea and land which ultimately wore out the power of the Napoleonic empire; in 1812 was foreign secretary; was also leader of the House of Commons; because of the conciliatory laid down by Lord Castlereagh, the treaty of peace was concluded at Ghent between Great Britain and the United States; the strain of so many years of responsibility and toil told on his health; his death profoundly effected the public, and he was buried in Westminster Abbey between the graves of Pitt and Fox; few men have taken part in so many important events; and the services which he rendered to his country and to Europe were signal.

Sir Robert Prescott: (1825–1894); musician; b. at Dublin; organist to Trinity Coll., and to St. Patrick's Cathedral; in 1846 became conductor of the Dublin University Choral Society, which presented him with his robes and jewelled baton when he graduated doctor of music, 1851; ten years later he was professor of music in Dublin University; in 1872, became professor of theory at the Royal Irish Academy and was knighted; Stewart was a remarkable organist and extemporizer, while his memory is said to have been phenomenal; his compositions are numerous and popular.

William: (1481?–1550?); Scots chronicles and verse writer, descended from Robert II of Scotland; he was destined for the church, but before 1526 became a frequenter of the court; the treasurer's accounts in that and succeeding years show various payments and presents made him from James V; he was among the poets of that king's court; in 1528 was commissioned by James to prepare a metrical version of the history of Hector Boece.

Sir William: (d. 1603); of Houston; soldier and diplomatist; entered the army and advanced to colonel; in 1583 was sent with John Colville on an embassy to England where he was well received by Queen Elizabeth, who presented him with a valuable chain; member of the privy council (in Scotland) and helped govern both the king and the country; and as captain of the guard vigorously supported the king; in 1590 was sent as embassador to the princes of Germany, and was rewarded on his return with a large sum of money and land grants; was knighted on the occasion of the baptism of Prince Henry.

Sir William: (1653–1692); first Viscount Mountjoy; was commissioner for managing claims under the acts of settlement and explanation by protestant officers; master-general of the ordnance, colonel of a regiment of foot and a privy councillor; went to England where he volunteered for foreign service; returning to England he was made a brigadier-general; Mountjoy was the trusted leader of the protestants.

Sir William: (1774–1827); lieutenant-general; in 1791 he went to Vienna and to the congress of Sistova; after his return became lieutenant-colonel; Stewart obtained leave to serve with the Austrian and Russian armies in the campaign of 1799 and was at the battle of Zurich; was sent to West India, Egypt, Sicily, etc.; Stewart served in seventeen campaigns, received six wounds and four contusions which so broke his health that he was forced to retire and give up his seat in parliament.

(I) PROMINENT STEWARTS OF AMERICA, PAST GENERATIONS

ALEXANDER: Canadian jurist; b. Halifax, N. S., 1794, s. of a Scottish Presbyterian minister; was educated at Halifax Grammar School and became a clerk in the ordinance department. He was a member of the Nova Scotia Assembly in 1826, master of the rolls and judge of vice-admiralty court in 1846, and, in 1856, was made a Companion of the Bath.

ALEXANDER TURNEY: merchant; b. Lisburn, Ireland, 1803. In 1825 he took his inheritance of $3,000 and opened a lace and linen store in New York City,—nucleus of what was to become the most extensive and lucrative dry-goods business in the world. His annual income was estimated at a million dollars in 1869,—an incredibly huge sum in those days,—but his generosity ever kept pace with his fortune and his hospitality was offered as readily to the penniless poet as to the visiting prince.

CHARLES: soldier; b. County Donegal, Ireland, 1729; was grandson of a Scottish officer of dragoons, who, for services rendered in the battle of Boyne, was given an estate in Ireland. He came to the United States in 1750 and became deputy surveyor-general of the province of Pennsylvania. During the Revolutionary war he served on the staff of Gen. Washington, with the rank of commissary-general of issues in the Continental army, and afterward represented New Jersey in the United States Congress.

CHARLES SAMUEL: clergyman; b. Flemington, N. J., 1795; was grandson of the Charles mentioned above. He edited the "Naval Magazine" in New York and, at his death, was senior chaplain in the U. S. Navy.

CHARLES SEAFORTH: soldier; b. at sea, 1823; s. of Charles Samuel. He served during the Civil war, being chief engineer of the Middle Military Division, 1864–65; was made colonel in 1882 and retired in 1886.

CHARLES: naval officer; b. Phila., 1778, of Irish descent. He was in the naval service for seventy-one years and, before and after he had charge of the Home Squadron in 1842–43, was in command of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. He was commissioned Rear-Admiral in 1862.

CHARLES JAMES: D.D.; Canadian Anglican bishop; b. Galloway, Wigtonshire, Scotland, 1775; fifth s. of John, 7th Earl of Galloway; was consecrated bishop in 1826 by Archbishop Sutton, at Lambeth Palace. In 1827 he went to Quebec and was installed in the cathedral there. He spent all of his private fortune in Canada to promote the erection of churches and for charity.

JOHN: Canadian statesman; b. Musselburg, Scotland, 1773; served in the Legislature and was President of the Executive Council of Canada.

WILLIAM: Canadian M. P.; b. Scotland, 1802; one of the founders of the Canadian lumber trade. He served in the Canadian Parliament and framed many important acts. His son, Major McLeod Stewart (b. Ottawa, Can., 1847) was a prominent lawyer in the city of his birth.

(K) STEWART TOWNS, ETC.

There are in the United States towns as follows:

STEWART: Ala., Ky., Minn., Miss., Nev., Ohio, Tenn., Tex.; STEWARTS POINT: Calif.; STEWARTSTOWN: Pa.; STEWARTSVILLE: Ind., Mo., N. J., Ohio, Va.; STEWARTVILLE: Minn. There are also in the United States numerous counties, townships, streets, avenues, etc., bearing the name "Stewart". This is eloquent testimony to the high esteem in which the name is held in this country.

(L) STEWART CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES

The compiler of these records has made up a list from city and telephone directories of the United States, and from other sources, as follows. Care was taken to eliminate, wherever possible, persons known or believed to be colored, or of nationalities other than British and American:

Alabama	265	Maine	82	Oklahoma	232
Arizona	43	Maryland	135	Oregon	55
Arkansas	86	Massachusetts	591	Pennsylvania	1282
California	1075	Michigan	528	Rhode Island	87
Colorado	232	Minnesota	216	South Carolina	18
Connecticut	147	Mississippi	57	South Dakota	15
District of Columbia	154	Missouri	317	Tennessee	329
Delaware	8	Montana	88	Texas	710
Florida	300	Nebraska	96	Utah	123
Georgia	218	Nevada	18	Vermont	52
Idaho	48	New Hampshire	58	Virginia	150
Illinois	723	New Jersey	398	Washington	218
Indiana	555	New Mexico	21	West Virginia	192
Iowa	196	New York	1238	Wisconsin	123
Kansas	174	North Carolina	83	Wyoming	13
Kentucky	177	North Dakota	33
Louisiana	76	Ohio	1038	Total	13,073

To secure an estimate of the "Stewart population" of the United States, we figure as follows:

	(a) Multiply by
Only about half the names were taken from each directory consulted	2
Half of the Stewarts reside in the rural districts or in small towns having no printed directories which were available to us	2
There are an average of more than four persons in each American family	4
Since Stewart daughters marry and have as many descendants as the Stewart sons, there are as many descendants of "other names" as there are bearing the name Stewart (though it is much easier to locate the latter)	2
By multiplying each figure of column (a) into the preceding figure, we have a total of	32
Conservative estimate of the Stewart population of the United States, one-half of whom bear the name Stewart and one-half of whom bear other names	418,336

The estimated Stewart population of any of the states may be obtained by multiplying the figures shown by 32. There are Stewarts in every state of the Union. The Stewart population of the British Empire is probably equal to that in the United States.

(M) RELIGIONS OF THE STEWARTS

For several centuries the Stewarts lived in Scotland. Most of the Scotch and, likewise, the Stewarts were and are of the Presbyterian faith.

There are a few Stewarts of the Catholic faith in the British Isles, but it is estimated that their number does not exceed two per cent of the entire Stewart population.

The Stewarts who came from the British Isles to America continued in the faith of their fathers, for the most part, though their descendants in this country today will be found in the memberships of practically all the various churches. It is estimated that of all the Stewarts in America who are church members, at least ninety-seven per cent are of the Protestant faith.

Biographical sketches of fifty-nine Stewarts appear in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Their religious faiths are shown as follows: CONGREGATIONALIST, 3; EPISCOPAL, 5; METHODIST, 2; METHODIST EPISCOPAL, 1; PRESBYTERIAN, 10; UNITARIAN, 2; RELIGION NOT STATED, 36.
